Dear Mr. Eversole.

Your letters cheer me very much – as to potatoes, do just what you think best. Pay Robinson what you feel best to pay him.

And as to payment to young boys, adopt whatever plan you think best. In fact if you [p. 2] like give them the choice of ways – but just as you like. I am quite anxious to be fair to them. The only reason that I have been upset was that I thought things ought by now to have been squarer – but I am not “out for dollars” only: I [p. 3] know now you will see right done – so adopt your own Scheme of payment. I have written to Mrs. Eversole this mail – I sent back the book about September 14 – by now you will have it. I was not able to get at it in holidays.

We are looking for an election in England and I am a liberal [p. 4] and share no patience with “dukes” I expect to have a lively time in our “division”. I wish we could drop in on you some Sunday – but alas! 5000 miles is a long way. When I have a flying machine it will be nothing.

With best regards to all I am

Yours sincerely

T. C. Fry.
